Big Four are considerably exercised over the heavy east-bound freight traffic of the Big Four, and allege that this business is secured by cutting the rate. Unbiased men who have looked into the matter say the rail rate is not cut, and if any rate cutting has been done it was by the men controlling the ocean rate. That the Big Four and Chesapeake & Ohio have great advantage in their export business through the steamship lines between Newport News and Europe is readily conceded, and no one questions that the putting of the steamships in service by President Ingalls and Traffic Managers Murray and Walker was a shrewd move. With ships in service the lines named have been allowed a differential. It is evident that the traffic officials named are determined to keep the steamship line in good working order; they will not cut the rail rate, but will give the advantage, if any, in the ocean rate-lines which are not amenable to any traffic association. No line of steamships was ever more steadily employed with full cargoes than those working in connection with the Big Four and the Chesapeake & Ohio. While it is true that, previous to President Ingalls taking so strong ground in favor of a better maintenance of freight rates, the Kanawha Dispatch, operating over the Big Four and the Chesapeake & Ohio, had be- new station at Liberty, Ind., was lately ome notorious as a rate cutting fast freight matter the two roads have been carrying the business of the dispatch only at tariff rates, of course using the differential to its fullest limit, and, as stated above, if the east-bound rates over these lilnes is being cut, it is done only on export business and at the expense of the ocean carrier.

Baggage Agents Adjourn.

The meeting of the American Association of General Baggage Agents, at San Antonio, concluded its sessions last night. The committee on concealed losses recommended the establishment of a bureau for the settlement of all such claims. It was decided to refer the matter to the general passenger agents, and the committee was given fur-ther time to estimate the cost of such a bureau. A resolution to transfer free two logs, crated, was lost, as was also a resolution providing for the holding of one meet-ing each year at a fixed place. Philadelphia was chosen as the next meeting place. Offi-cers were elected as follows: President, Geo. A. Morton; vice president, J. C. Nicholas; secretary and treasurer, J. E. Quick; ex-ecutive committee—W. S. Napier, J. B. Browning and H. B. Dearing.

HOW TO PRODUCE CERTAIN DESIRA-BLE EFFECTS IN ROOMS.

Summer Goods Already Seen in the Shops-Age a Sensitive Point with Men-Various Suggestions.

To make a room appear higher the plane surface of the ceiling should be decreased by the moldings of the cornice, by panels, or, in the absence of these, by bands of color performing the same office, says the English Mechanic. A vertical system of line should be adopted in mural decoration, and the mantel should be lower.

To make a room appear lower, exactly the opposite treatment should be adoptedthat is, to increase the plane ceiling, adopt a horizontal system of mural decoration, with a dado and a high mantel.

To make a room appear wider is accomplished, to a certain extent, by making it appear lower, but where this is undesirable, or where it is sufficient, the effect can be reached by adopting a mural decoration on a graduated scale of form, decreasing upward, so that two or more patterns at the top like those at the foot are found to occupy the same space as one at the foot and this effect can be much increased by a gradation of color upward from dark to

To make a room appear narrower is acomplished, to a certain extent, by making it appear higher, but where this is undesirable or insufficient it can be obtained by adopting a strongly drawn large pattern in strong color for mural decoration.

To make a room appear longer is to an extent accomplished by making it appear lower and narrower, but where this is undesirable or inefficient the effect may be obtained by decreasing the scale and strength of color of the mural decoration adopted at the ends. To make a room appear shorter is accomplished to an extent by making it appear wider and higher, but the effect can be achieved by increasing the scale and strength of color of the mural decorations adopted at the ends. Any of these effects can be modified or increased by the treatment of the floor surpainted boards, or by parquet flooring; lines running across a room or rugs laid down at intervals, having the effect of shortening and consequently, to an extent, of heightening and widening a room. Lines running in the length increase this dimension, and, to an extent, reduce the height and width. polished floor increases the apparent height of an apartment by reflecting all vertical lines and prolonging them.

For the Blonde-Haired.

Philadelphia Press. As is well known, the French are an authority on all things pertaining to the oilette. For the benefit of blonde, light brown, chestnut and auburn hair, the following simple recipe comes from a French barber. It is one that is constantly used, but as monsieur says, "The ladies often abuse it, and then instead of it being beneficial it proves most injurious." It is simrailway service, and previous to the latter ply an even teaspoonful of borax in a cup appointment held various other minor posi- of warm water-remember, an even too spoonful, not a handful. The latter is the quantity some women use, and when their hair is injured they declare: "Borax makes the hair fail!" Undoubtedly it does when used wholesale. When the borax is dissolved in the warm water, wet the scalp with the preparation until every particle of dandruff is loosened and the head feels entirely clean. Let the hair dry; on the following day rinse it in warm water, followed by cold; if possible, dry in the sun; when quite dry, comb carefully and brush very slightly. Borax used in the above manner every fortnight causes the hair to become much lighter; dull olonde hair takes on a bright, sunny, golden hue, and brown hair a warm reddish When dressing the hair give three four good, long strokes of the brush up from the neck and back from the templesthis will keep it in a glossy condition and give it a "well-groomed look," which is certainly desirable. Those who have red hair and are dissatisfied with the color should give it a great deal of brushing; persevere in the treatment recommended for black hair, and in time red hair will take an

Blondes, by substituting gin and rum in the recipe given for dark hair, will obtain an excellent tonic, if one is needed. White and gray hair should be cleaned with am-monia-a teaspoonful to a basin of lukewarm water; and the hair should be well rinsed in cooler water. A little vaseline, the white, rubbed into the scalp with the tips of the fingers, will keep the hair from ecoming dry. Neither white nor gray hair should be washed in borax water, for the borax is apt to produce a yellowish shade, destroying the fine, silvery look which gives many women an air of distinction Whilst using ammonia or borax be careful to protect the eyebrows; as these ungents

It must be generally acknowledged that men become 4.000 residents who did not know or who did not admit knowing their age, or concerning whom no definite information on the subject could be secured, 2,900 were men, and only 1,100 women." So much for statistics, while here is a story by way of upper Mississippi valley, and light rains in the lower Mississippi valley, in Indiana and from Mississippi and Louisiana eastward to the Atlantic coast.

In the Mississippi valley, and light rains and summarily demanded their ages. It so happened that both women lay prostrate in their berths, being not yet recovered from their berths, being not yet recovered from seasickness. The daughter was, however, sufficiently conscious to ask the man what he meant by such a question. He replied that it was because of the new immigration laws, whereupon the daughter said: "Oh, and gave her age, twenty-blank, "And hers?" asked the officer, pointing to the mother in the lower berth. "One hundred and four." said the daughter, sweetly, a statement that even penetrated the torpid tympanum of the mether, and she remonstrated piteously: "No, I'm not; I'm only forty-blank. You mustn't put me down as Both having given their correct ages, and strong in conscious rectitude and the seasickness being better, they, a little later, appeared upon the deck. There they met the man of the party. "Did that man come to you wanting to find out your ages?" he at once demanded. "He did," replied the wife and daughter. "And what did you tell him?" went on the man of the party. "The truth, of course," answered the women. "Didn't you?" "Not much," said the man, who is full fifty-blank: "I just told him to put me down as thirty-five, and he did." How to Eat.

"I should like," said a woman recently, a woman who is an enthusiast on wholesome eating, "to establish a restaurant where persons who patronized it would be obliged to eat with a little regard to the suitable combination of foods. In Germany, for instance, there is a law forbidding restaurateurs to serve beer to persons who have have some of these restrictions. The other | value of sugar is very great. She was a pale, anaemic-looking creature, and those two powerful nutrients, milk and beef, were too much for her to take together, particularly as she eliminated all chance of digestive affiliation with her abominable fried potatoes. "In my restaurant the order card should be different for luncheon and dinner, and should consist of a dozen or fifteen wholesome and appetizing menus at each meal; the waitresses should be young women who should have some slight knowledge of food values, and this should be increased while they were in my employ, and there should is nothing that so promptly cuts short conbe some rules in my establishment that gestion of the lungs, sore throat, or inflam-could not be violated. In the Shops.

The frigid temperature has no effect or the regularity with which the cotton dress goods appear directly after Christmas, and they continue to unfold their gauzy loveliness without any regard for the fitness of things. The new dimities, organdles and challies are very much alike in pattern, and they come in dainty stripes either plain or flowered over with rosebuds or tiny dots and in Persian patterns of various designs in soft delicately blended colors. Batistes are in greater variety than ever, and bid fair to be more popular than they were last season. White batiste striped with various colors are especially desirable for summer gowns. Anything in bargains among the lowered taffeta silks is a safe investment, but crepons are a doubtful purchase, for it is said that they are slowly but surely going out of fashion. Chameleon silks, printed velvets and chiffon, and net with apique designs of lace and embroidery, will be fashionable materials in dress for some time to come. Velvet is used in combination with fur for fancy collarettes, which will be especially serviceable in the early spring, and it is often arranged in loops all around the edges with a frill of cream lace inside the high-standing collar. Boas and neck ruffles, which are so fashionable now, afford no end of uses for bits of lace and velvet, and fur capes which are long enough to attain the dignity of a cloak are sometimes decorated with rosettes or ribbon and lace, with lace ends on either side of the collar where it fastens. Individuality in dress is the special object in view just at present, and what is not worn by the multitude is most desired by fashionable women, providing, of course, that the outlines of fashion are maintained.

she can make good use of her remnants. The Art of Preservation.

So, since the policy of the leaders of fash-ion is diffigently to eschew the things most worn, the woman with taste and ingenuity has a wide field for her artistic talents, and

Pittsburg Dispatch. While self-preservation is the first law of nature, women, as a general rule, have trifled so much with nature that they not preserve her constitution. Take for instance, the seemingly unimportant matter of sitting well. Now, how many women know how to sit so as to give ease and real rest to the body? The spine must be kept straight and the support felt in the right back as possible in the chair and allow the spine to be braced by the back of the seat. This position makes no strain upon the ligaments of the spine. It allows a proper position of the shoulders-consequently of the chest and lungs, stomach and every other organ of the body. Their work is carried on naturally and comfortably, as is also the circulation of the blood, which in an incorrect sitting position is seriously The ravages that worries make are the worst of all. And many of the worrying hours are entirely unnecessary. That is the worst of it. It sounds inhuman to tell anyone with money difficulties staring her in the face not to worry. But, lamenting the fact that the dinner was particularly plain and homely when your wealthy friend dropped in for "pot luck;" worry lest it will rain because James forgot to carry his umbrella and overshoes, could all be prevented by a little common sense.

In fact, a woman can accustom herself to the minimum of this useless brooding over trifles. Not all at once, but little by little, and the sooner she begins the better. After a year or two she will find people marveling at her complexion and elas-

By What Right?

Harper's Bazar. We hear much of the divine right of kings," but it remains to be proved by what right, far from divine, some people make speeches to which others dare not

By what right does your neighbor criticise the management of your house, your family, and even yourself, when you never think of interfering with her affairs? Why should she tell you that your dress is too short, your hat unbecoming, your hair roughened by the wind, when you keep thoughts uncomplimentary to her personal appearance to yourself?
Why should she be allowed to give vent. unchallenged, to censure and impertinece, one-fifth of which, if uttered by yourself, would condemn you in the eyes of all your acquaintances as unmannerly and under-

And if your officious friend believes she has the right to say what she pleases, who gives it to her? Certainly not her long-suffering victim, who writhes under the sharp lash of the privileged tongue. Whatsoever right the disagreeable outoken woman has, and by whomsoever it has been bestowed, it is time that a Society for the Protection of Long-suffering Hu-manity deprived her of the "right," which is nothing less than "wrong."

The Sun Bonnet.

One of the "new women" has awakened to the realization that the old-fashioned sun bonnet should be resuscitated. She is of Southern birth, and she says: "I do wish I could get about twenty women to join me in bringing the sunbonnet into popularity again. Many women do their own marketing—and how absurd they look togged out in flowers and ribbons, in silks and laces; how much more appropriate would be the old-fashioned sunbonnet. A pretty woman always looks prettier in a dainty, white sunconnet, and what a picturesque feature of our markets it would become if our attractive society dames would return to the pretty sunbonnets of their grandmother's day. I would like to see school children in pretty sunbonnets, too. If our wise women would only "make the break." how soon our streets would be filled with sweet, chattering school girls in the sweet, old-fashioned sunbonnet." The pen picture is pretty, so I borrow it and offer it to our readers for what it is worth.

Importance of Mouth Hygiene. Popular Science. Dr. P. Ritter says the mouth is the starting point and breeding place of germs. He has frequently seen workmen and workwomen lose their places on account of the want of incisor teeth or foul breath. Continuous toothache frequently led steady men to the brandy bottle for the relief of pain. On the basis of many years' experience he held the following to be demanded: The appointment of experienced dentists to examine the mouths of all school children at stated intervals, the parents to be informed of the result of the examination, and left to have the treatment required carried out privately or through institutions; the ap-pointment of dentists for the poor; delivery of addresses in the public schools on the importance of the masticatory apparatus and the toilet of the mouth, and the dissemination of printed instructions on the toilet of the mouth to the poor population.

From Here and There.

An excellent wash for plants is tobacco water. Take a handful of tobacco stems and steep them by pouring boiling water over them until the water looks like strong tea. When the water has become cool wipe off the leaves and stems with a sponge or soft cloth. Reduce the strength of the infusion with more water and thoroughly wet the earth around the roots. This will keep plants healthy and remove all insects. A pretty way to assign partners at a card party is to have two baskets of flowers, one filled with tiny nosegays of different kinds of flowers, the other with boutonieres containing the same kind of flowers. Those who have posies that match are to be partners. Another way is to provide two sets of cards with one line of a quotation on one card and the other part on another card. Those to be partners are those having the complete quotation. Much of the outcry against candy is the result of wrong methods of use. It can often be safely taken at meal time with good results. Scientists say that the food sugar contains much more energy and pow-er to support animal life than a pound of meat. If candy is taken under such conditions that it will not derange the digestive apparatus it is perfectly wise and rational to be a candy eater.

Illustrated rhymes or poems are amusing for part of an evening's entertainment. Give to each guest a numbered slip of paper on which is written a stanza from a wellknown nursery rhyme, "Jack and Jill,"
"Mary Had a Little Lamb," "Little Boo Peep," or a verse of a well-known poem. These verses must not be shown, but, according to number, each guest is to illustrate the verse either on a large blackboard in the sight of all or on a large sheet of paper pinned securely to a door. Guesses are made by the others as to the subjects of the verses illustrated. If one likes, prizes may be given to the person making the largest number of correct guesses. The uses of hot water are many. There lied promptly and thoroughly. A strip of fiannel, dipped in hot water, and wrung out and applied around the neck of a child that has the croup will sometimes bring relief in ten minutes. Headache almost always yields to the simultaneous application of hot water to the feet and back of the neck. Hot water will relieve neuralgia, and a cupful taken before retiring is very bene-ficial. A glass of hot water taken before breakfast has cured many cases of indigestion, and no simple remedy is more widely recommended by physicians to dyspeptics. "That is one reason why Bridget is to be pitied," says a woman. "She is ever treated as if all ways except those of her present mistress were the ways of ignorance. It is the wise housekeeper that blesses her stars when a room is quickly and quietly swept, and shuts her eyes to the way the broom is held. There are ways of sweeping that only stir the dirt, and little of it is carried out of the room; but all good sweep-ers do not carry their brooms at the same angle. I have seen a woman who always took her broom "squaw-handed," and yet she did not raise a dust, and she did sweep clean. The broadest-minded women are not sticklers for their own little ways in housekeeping, nor in other things, but are well content if the results are all right. Judge a servant by results, not by the narrow standard of methods."

THREE FIVE-POUND BOYS.

Haughville Mother Gives Birth to Triplets-All Doing Well.

At least two citizens of Haughville are doing their duty in the effort to make that suburb a place of national prominence and increase the population of the State. Mrs. Helen Reynolds, wife of George Reynolds, a molder, who lives at No. 36 Sheffield street, yesterday shortly after noon gave birth to three boys. They weigh five pounds each and are in a healthy condition. The mother is also doing well. Mr. Reynolds wears a smile suitable to the occasion, and was kept busy last night receiving the congratulations of his friends.

Atta Naanes Declared Insane. Atta Nagnes, who was convicted in the Criminal Court of grand larceny, and sent to the woman's prison for one year, was yesterday declared insane. Attorney Willard only regret her laws but her existence as Robertson, in defending the girl, contended well. Some things a woman should do to that she was a kleptomaniac, and on this ground the Supreme Court reversed the lower court. The girl is now in jail, and has to be watched constantly. She says that something is loose in her head, and insists that it is rolling about. Her parents live in Johnson county, but she imagines they are in Cuba.

> The revival meetings at the Seventh Presbyterian Church, conducted by Miss Della Rees, Quaker evangelist, are drawing large crowds. Last night the audience crowded the church, overflowing into the prayer meeting rooms and parlors. The singing of Miss Macomber, is also an attractive feature of the meetings. Miss Rees is well and widely known. Many ministers of different churches attend.

OF CONSUMPTION.

FACTS WITH WHICH FEW ARE PA-MILIAR.

Dyspepsia or ordinary indigestion is seldom regarded as a dangerous disease, yet doctors now realize that any disturbance of the digestive function is but a stepping stone to the most dangerous and fatal of all diseases-dread consumption.

This appears very clear when we consider that consumption, as the name implies, is but a consuming of the body's substance. Weakness and emacjation naturally result. The body of a person who does not properly digest food undergoes wasting, and you may safely assume that every pale, thin person of your acquaintance is not properly digesting and absorbing food. In other words, the substance of the body is being consumed and when the cough puts in an appearance they will be regarded as con-The symptoms of consumption and those arising from certain forms of indigestion are practically identical. Therefore don't despair, even if you think your lungs may be affected. First try to repair your stom-ach and put it in order. This is best done by a very harmless, though very ingenious, remedy—the Shaker Digestive Cordial. This product, prepared by the Shakers of Mount Lebanon, aids the digestion of food in the stomach, and when food is once digested it is quickly absorbed.

If you are dyspeptic, don't wait until some more dangerous disease has appeared. Correct the trouble at once A single ten-cent bottle of the Shaker Di-gestive Cordial will be sufficient to convince you of its merit, and its continued use is almost certain to effect a cure. All druggists keep it and can supply you with an interesting descriptive pamphlet.
